“Recommencement”

Dear Colleagues,

It is with great pleasure that we return activities in the Oral Sciences. At this point, it is necessary to clarify some points and perspectives after the long period of interruption of the periodicity in the publications.

The Oral Sciences was idealized starting from the premise of free and unlimited access to scientific knowledge. The realization of these ideals represents a challenge, especially for a newly created journal. For us this was no different, which added to the wide range of editorial hindrances which we experienced, resulted in the interruption of the periodicity of the journal.

Today, considering our short history, we can see the value of learning arising from such difficulties. The whole process was essential for a new direction of the journal about the goals, management, and mechanism of submission and attendance of articles, besides the process of evaluation.

Therefore, we apologize for the interruption of the periodicity of the journal and, judging that we are able to resume publishing activities, we call upon the scientific community to be part of the “recommencement” of the Oral Sciences.

Sincerely,

Jacy Ribeiro de CARVALHO, Jr.
